The University of Padova is revolutionizing forestry education with a free online course focused on gender equality, diversity, and inclusion. Participants will gain unlimited access to a wealth of resources including articles, videos, and quizzes, along with the opportunity to earn a PDF Certificate of Achievement. This initiative coincides with the International Day of Forests, emphasizing the global importance of forest conservation. Additionally, the XXVI IUFRO World Congress 2024 in Stockholm will highlight a shift towards greater global equity, with a significant representation from the Global South, aligning with the UN's Sustainable Development Goals to foster inclusive partnerships. This course and congress represent pivotal steps towards inclusivity in forestry education and practice.
