

How sustainability achieved gender parity and what it means for women in business | Greenbiz

Description

Our recent report on chief sustainability officers (CSOs) in the U.S. revealed that women went from holding 28 percent in 2011 of the CSO positions to 54 percent in 2021. That's a 94 percent increase. It's a positive development to see the playing field level for women in sustainability, but what's driving this trend? And what are the implications for women's leadership in business more broadly? Before diving into those questions, it's interesting to look at the trends in gender and leadership in sustainability and business.
