

» Leading by example with our climate pledge

Description

From raging fires to life-threatening floods, it's impossible to ignore the effect climate change is having on our planet. We can't push it aside and say we'll solve it in the future. Together, we need to act now by thinking and behaving as sustainably as possible. At Anthony Collins Solicitors (ACS), many of our clients own huge parts of the UK infrastructure, including local authorities, housing associations and schools. We're here to advise them on everything they can do to help avert the climate emergency. Addressing today's challenges – Even if an organisation or local authority recognises today's challenges, that doesn't mean the policies they write necessarily filter down through the organisation and become part of daily life. That's where we come in. We bring our experience of emerging good practice to deliver on the sustainability agenda.
